

KAUFMAN SAFE IN BROTHER'S CHARGE

The Chicago 'Earl Carew' Is Positively Identified as the Man.

SENT TO A SANITARIUM.

Young Man Could Not Explain His Mysterious Disappearance.

Young Emanuel Kaufman, who disappeared from the Marlborough Hotel on Sept. 11, has really been found. Confirmation of the report was received by David Kaufman, the young man's father, at the hotel yesterday morning.

The report was confirmed, too, that Kaufman was the person whose letter, signed "Earl Carew" to Morton Stein, a young lawyer of this city, was at first thought to be from a crank.

Emanuel and his brother, Ferdinand M., who went to Chicago to identify him, started yesterday for Mt. Clemens, Mich., where Emanuel will be placed in a sanatorium for a short time. The father, also, left New York for Mt. Clemens.

Young Kaufman discovered himself, Clews as to his whereabouts had been traced by his father to Philadelphia and Baltimore, but to no avail. Finally the young man saw his picture in the paper, and though he had forgotten his real identity, wrote a letter saying he believed he was the one sought for.

This letter was sent to Morton Stein, a young lawyer, at No. 24 Wall street, and was signed "Earl Carew." It was written upon stationery of McCreary's Hotel, Chicago.

In the letter Kaufman said he did not remember what had happened before waking up one morning and finding himself in a Niagara Falls hotel. He could not remember his name, but, sending down for his bill, found that he had registered as "Earl Carew." This is the name of one of the characters in the play "His Excellency, the Governor." He also found that he was in possession of a ticket to Chicago made out for the same person.

At McCreary's Hotel, in Chicago, he again registered as Earl Carew, and from there he sent the letter to Stein, who was the only person whose name Kaufman said he could remember. He described himself with accuracy, and asked that some one be sent to see him. The handwriting on the letter, however, was unlike that of Kaufman, so his father was very much puzzled by it.

Kaufman's laundry mark was known to his father, so a friend was telegraphed to ascertain the laundry mark upon the clothing of the "Earl." This correspondence to that of young Kaufman, there was no further question as to the identity of the supposed "Earl."

Ferdinand M. Kaufman, who with his father had been searching unavailingly for the missing boy since September 11, left New York Thursday night for Chicago. Late Friday night came a telegram confirming the identification.

CABLE CAR FAILS TO KILL THIS BOY.

As It Goes Over Him He Grabs the Brake Chains.

Frank Rose, a small Postal Telegraph messenger, owes his life to-day to his talent as an acrobat. When a Broadway car runs him down it makes no difference to him—rather the reverse, for he gets a free ride out of the incident.

Rose is attached to the office at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue. When he is not engaged in delivering messages he is doing gymnastics, with the office furniture as his apparatus. The millings serve him as horizontal bars, and a gas jet does as a trapeze, for he is not very heavy. When the manager has some work for Frank to do and doesn't see him on the floor he doesn't give up the quest. He simply guesses up to the ceiling to see if he is walking on it like a fly or is hanging by the heels from the shelf on which the paper stock is stored.

Frank was sent on his wheel yesterday morning with a bundle of Dewey flags, to be delivered in a downtown office building. He hurried along, stopping only once or twice to turn a few handspins and keep in practice. He took the Broadway route.

At Bond street he was fascinated by the sight of a tall pole and was wondering how many seconds it would take him to climb up to its top, when a Broadway car bowed him over and sent his bicycle spinning into the gutter.

The gripman saw the boy vanish under the platform and then waited with a shiver to hear the crashing of bones. He brought the car to a standstill as quickly as he could. Then the boy poked his head from under the car and inquired:

"Why don't you see if you're going?"

Young Rose, when the platform hit him, seized hold of the brake chains that hang under the gripman's feet, and, enlisting himself up with the agility of a monkey, held on to the floor of the car. One of his feet dragged along on the ground, but the wheels didn't stop him.

He travelled half a block in this perilous pose.

But He Wouldn't Pay Fare.

When he emerged from his perch he denounced the car and its crew, the company and its stockholders and every one connected with it.

"If I hadn't been an acrobat you'd have fixed me," said he. "I believe you people like to grind me up, because you're just to give the undertakers something to do. I shouldn't wonder if you're in with the undertakers."

Then, turning to the conductor, who had alighted to help pick up the pieces of messenger, Master Rose continued:

"I suppose you're here after my fare for that ride. But I won't pay it. Sue me for it if you like, and I'll sue you for the cost of me wheel!"

He looked ruefully at his bicycle, which had a dislocated sprocket, and then went on his way. At the Forty-second street office later in the day he was walking about with his hands and waving his legs in the air as usual.

Arrested for Shadowing a Woman.

William Cohen, twenty-five years old, of No. 173 Clinton street, who had a card on which he described himself as an apothecary of Bellevue Dispensary, was fined $10 by Magistrate Crane in the Essex Market Court yesterday. Mrs. Sadie Marsh, of No. 429 Grand street, charged him with annoying her by spying on her movements. She is separated from her husband, and she alleged that her husband had engaged Cohen to shadow her.

The Rough Rider Shoe.

The most popular foot covering of the present time for men. They stood the severest test during the season 1898-'99. Monday, Sept. 25th, they appear for a second record. The following points are their merits over any other shoe produced:

First—They are absolutely Waterproof, a feature no other shoes possess, because they are made by our own patent process.

Second—They have the appearance of dress and comfort combined, although they are a heavy and solid shoe.

Third—No rubbers required; especially useful for classes of men continually outdoors. The leathers made into these shoes are Patent Leather, Enamelled Leather, Calfskin, Winter Russet Leather, made in the most fashionable shapes, double soles.

No other shoe has ever received so many testimonials: the "Rough Rider" has been service. Price for all styles and kinds.
